Dear Mr. :

Thank you for your most recent letter to American Indian Studies Center Publications at UCLA. I am glad that you are enjoying the materials we have sent you. Enclosed you will find some more materials that follow the theme of the Aztec and Mesoamerican Cultures:

Religions of Mesoamerica

Mornings in Mexico

I am also including some more Nahuatl language materials.

I hope you continue to enjoy the materials we send you. Please let me know if any interest in other tribal groups or topics arises, so I can send you materials corresponding to them.

Sincerely,

Anthony Recinos

Dear Mr. :

First and foremost, I would sincerely like to apologize for the delay with this response. It is some months late now, and I feel terrible. Unfortunately, my job also entails handling subscriptions to our journal that we publish, along with plenty of other duties, and those things take precedence above everything else at times. To say the least, I've been processing hundreds of subscription renewals and handling other matters within the last weeks.

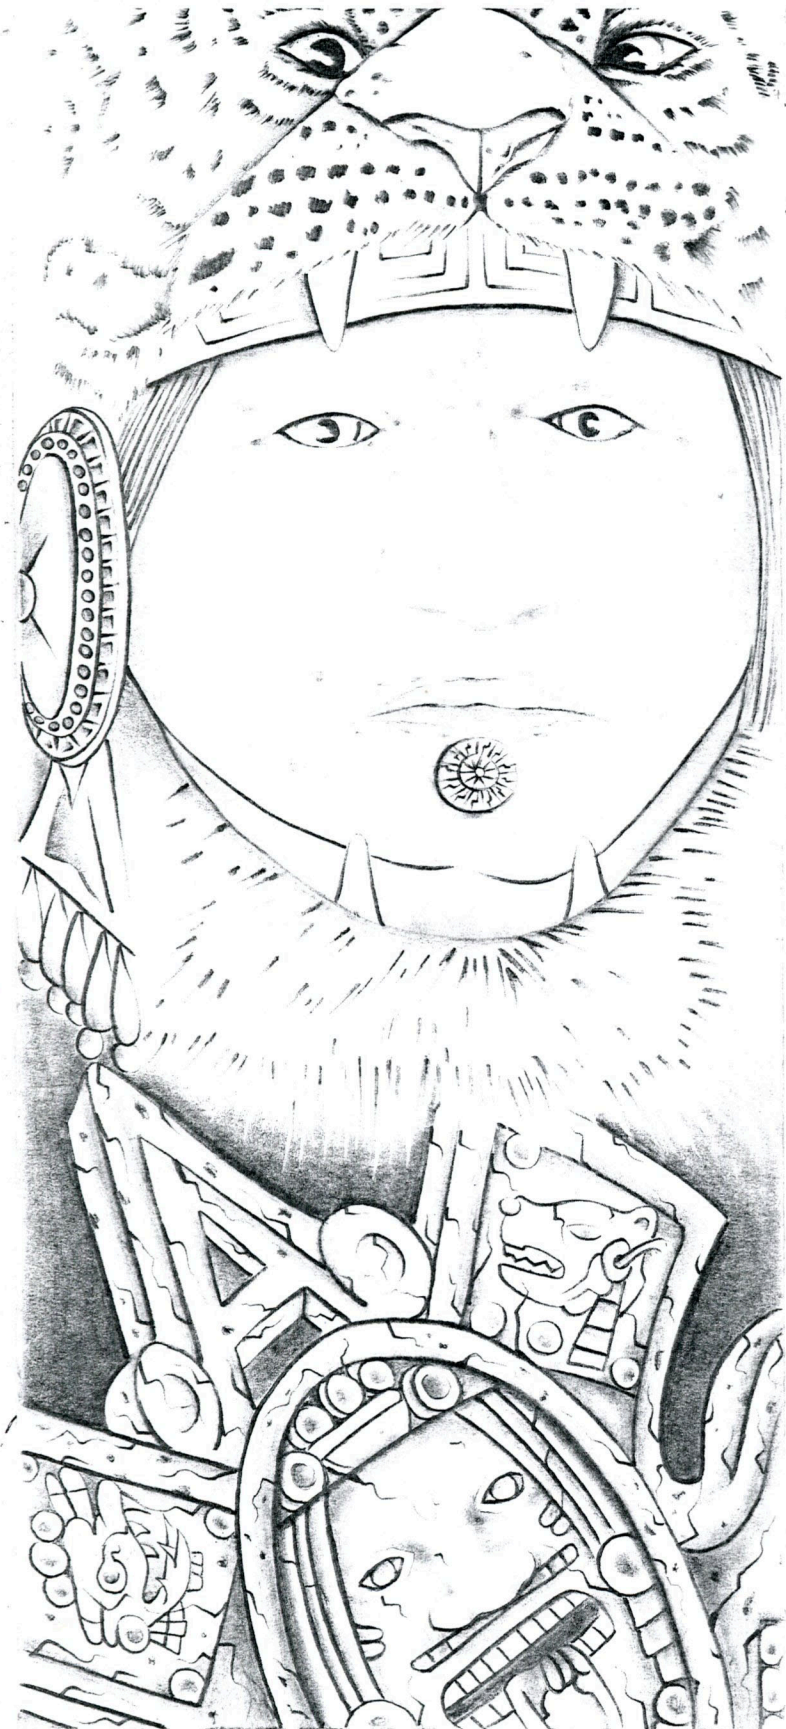

Thank you for your most recent letter to American Indian Studies Center Publications at UCLA. Unfortunately, we haven't received any new donations as of late, and I don't think I have any Aztec material to send you. I am sending some print outs of info that I am finding online. I am also sending a book titled The Smithsonian Book of North American Indians: Before the Coming of the Europeans, which I hope you find interesting.

I hope you continue to enjoy the materials we send you. I truly am sorry for the lack of Aztec material; our program is in the growing stages and it's hard to come by some stuff at times.

Best Regards,
